Auburn Symphony Orchestra: A Variety of Performances in November

November brings us three more performances from Auburn Symphony to stream for free from auburnsymphony.org. This month offers variety. From a solo performance captured at home to a full orchestra performance from the archives and a recently recorded string quartet, there's something for every mood. Soloist Series: Sarah Viens, trumpet on Nov 5, Picture Studies on Nov 12, and String Quartet music of Emilie Mayer and Ludwig van Beethoven on Nov 19.

Premiering November 5, 7:30 PM, Sarah Viens shares some heartwarming tunes in her solo performance, including Grazioso, composed by Oskar Boehme and Allegretto, composed by Pierre Clodomir. Viens is Principal Trumpet of Auburn Symphony, Pacific Northwest Ballet Orchestra, and Eugene Symphony. She is an instructor and frequent performer with many orchestras and festivals in the Pacific Northwest.

Picture Studies, is a 28-minute work for orchestra based on four paintings, three photographs, and one sculpture. The piece brings eight seemingly disparate works of art to musical life. This gorgeous piece of music performed by the Auburn Symphony in October 2019 will be available to stream beginning November 12 at 7:30 pm.

An Auburn Symphony String Quartet dives into German Romanticism with the works of Emilie Mayer and Ludwig van Beethoven. This lovely performance was filmed recently at Green River College's beautiful Salish Hall. You'll be able to watch it beginning November 19.

You can still listen to several of ASO's recent recordings online for free including, Uncommon Voices Wind Quintet, The Planets multimedia performance, and ASO Percussionists in Recital. Check auburnsymphony.org regularly for updates including performances and links to learning and listening resources. The Symphony is offering their concerts for free as a commitment to remain Creatively Connected to the community during this time.
